Giant Pandas

What is black and white and looks like a big bear? A giant panda! There are very few giant pandas in the world. In the wild, they live in bamboo forests. These forests are found only in parts of China. Some giant pandas are in zoos around the world. These pandas were gifts from China.

Giant pandas can eat bamboo for 12 or more hours a day. That's a lot of bamboo! They have paws with a toe that works like a thumb to grab the bamboo. They have big, strong teeth for chewing bamboo.

Giant pandas are born alive. The babies are very small when they are born. These tiny babies are pink with no hair. Their eyes are closed. As they grow, the young pandas get black spots on their skin. Panda mothers feed and protect their babies for many months.

China wants to protect the giant pandas living in the bamboo forests. Land has been set aside where giant pandas can live safe from harm. Someday there may be many more pandas in the world.

Name _____

A Giant Panda Is Born

Cut out the sentences below and paste them in order.

Start here

At one month, the baby gets black spots on its skin.	When it is grown, a giant panda is big. It has black-and-white fur.
At four months, the baby has hair. Its eyes are open. It can crawl.	When it is born, a panda has no hair. Its eyes are not open.
